PUGET SOUND ENERGY

Washington State Renewable Energy System Incentive Program

This program is no longer accepting new participants. Customers who successfully enrolled and received certification during the program's eligibility period may continue to receive incentive payments in accordance with program rules and certification terms.

The Washington State Renewable Energy System Incentive Program (WSRESIP) is a production-based incentive that rewards customers for generating electricity from qualifying renewable energy systems, including:

- Solar photovoltaic (PV) systems
- Wind energy systems
- Anaerobic digester systems

Puget Sound Energy (PSE) voluntarily administers incentive payments for eligible participants as directed by the Washington State Program Administrator.

Eligibility requirements for existing participants

To remain eligible for incentive payments, participants must:

- Be a PSE customer
- Maintain a valid interconnection agreement with PSE
- Have a PSE-owned production meter—many customers use their own production meters, which are not eligible for program
- Hold a valid certification from the Washington State Program Administrator

PSE measures and reports annual system production and distributes incentive payments to qualified participants. Production is measured from July 1 to June 30.

Important information

- Applications are no longer being accepted.
- Incentive payments are only available to customers who enrolled during the program's authorized enrollment period and continue to meet eligibility requirements or those who move into a premise with a certified system in operation that has remaining incentive eligibility. These customers must contact the WSU Energy Program to have state certification of eligibility transferred into their name.
- Participants who enrolled before program limit was reached are eligible for up to eight years of annual incentive payments on kilowatt-hours generated through no later than June 30, 2029.
- Payment terms, annual limits and incentive eligibility are determined by the Washington State Program Administrator.
