Local Engagement

PSE partnered with local artist Joe Seymour, Jr. – Squaxin Island/Pueblo of Acoma - to beautify some electric boxes at Heritage Park Fountain. Of the opportunity Seymour says, “What made this project personal to me is that the Deschutes estuary is my traditional homelands. The Squaxin Island people have been stewards this area for centuries. So, I consider habitat restoration and utilizing green sources of energy part of my duty to the land of my ancestors. To be asked to create designs that highlight solar energy, wind turbines and salmon habitat restoration was a huge honor for me. When creating these designs, I wanted to come up with images that were truly Coast Salish and yet, captured the essence of green energy. I feel that with the designs that went on the boxes, I was able to do that.”
